

We, as the ISF Staff, are asking you to sign a statement of covenant as you embark on your mission project. This covenant is based on love and compassion; not rules, obligations and fears.

The following covenant is based on Biblical principles and, if followed, will create an atmosphere of understanding, unity and trust among team members. We believe it is necessary to communicate upfront about the standards that we expect ISF team members to follow. We also hope that you have the ability to discern right and wrong about other unmentioned topics as you follow the guidance of the Holy Spirit throughout this project. By signing the following covenant, you and your teammates are entering an agreement together so as to prevent any confusion as to what is expected between now and the conclusion of your project. If any unforeseen or questionable circumstances arise, your Team Leader is in a spiritual position to help clarify any issues with you and your team.

As a ISF team member, departing for my mission trip this week, I agree to:

- Pray regularly for my teammates, mission personnel, team leader, and country where I will be serving.
- Demonstrate spiritual humility, willingness, and flexibility throughout my project.
- Refrain from complaining, gossiping, or whining about circumstances or people.
- Willingly experience the customs of the culture I am entering, including food, worship, housing and dress.
- Make every effort to interact and fellowship with all my teammates.
- Have fun and live each moment with excitement and expectancy.
- Avoid any actions which might be perceived as romantic by my teammates or the nationals of the country where I will be serving.
- Refrain from drinking or partaking of any kind of drug (unless prescribed) throughout my project, this includes travel time and time in airports.
- Maintain a sense of integrity as a ISF representative and remember that, more importantly, I represent Christ in all I do.

Should I fail to meet the above criteria, I understand that I may be asked to return home early at my own expense. By signing below, I agree to this covenant.

---

Participants Name

---

Team Name

---

Participants Signature

---

Date